ABSTRACT

A structure has an edge configured to contact an underside of a medium along a media path. The edge extends path across a majority of a width of the media path.